[The Nippon Foundation News] August Greetings

Greetings from The Nippon Foundation. After a one-year delay due to the coronavirus pandemic, the 2020 Tokyo Olympic Games concluded on the evening of Sunday, August 8. Initial public apprehension over holding the Games during a fourth coronavirus state of emergency began to ease somewhat once the competitions got underway, especially as Japanese athletes started winning what would become a record number of both gold medals and total medals for the country. Most events were held without spectators and bars and restaurants were closed or not serving alcohol under the state of emergency, however, meaning that people watched the events at home on television instead of attending in person or gathering with friends. In addition, with no spectators from overseas and the athletes, Olympic officials, and members of the overseas media spending their time in self-contained bubbles to prevent the spread of infections, the festive atmosphere that would normally been the case throughout the city was missing. Nevertheless, the performances of the Olympians provided excitement and inspiration to viewers in Japan and around the world. Now that the Olympic athletes have returned home, attention is turning to the Paralympic Games, which are scheduled to open on August 24.
